

SARMASHNI NAIDU
ICT ACHIEVERS AWARDS 2004 -TOP BLACK WOMEN

SAGE COMPUTER TECHNOLOGIES IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE THAT SARMASHNI NAIDU HAS BEEN AWARDED THE
TOP BLACK WOMEN
AFRICAN ICT ACHIEVER FOR 2004

The purpose of the ICT Achievers Awards is to honour individuals and companies across the African Continent for their exceptional contribution to ICT arena.

Sarmashni started Sage Computer Technologies in 1998 and together with her Sage Computer Technologies Team has managed to overcome a lot of extraordinary obstacles including gender stereotypes that has been prevalent in the workplace.

Sarmashni's contribution in building Sage Computer Technologies as a successful, service oriented ICT Solution Provider has been invaluable and bears testament to her tireless belief and investing in women and individuals that seek passion, excitement and who are willing to learn.

Background of the Award:

To stimulate the growth of the ICT sector in South Africa as well as in the Black ICT environment, ForgeAhead in partnership with the Department of Communications launched an annual ICT Achievers Award programme. The rationale hereof being to recognize and honour excellence amongst black ICT professionals, who made a significant contribution to the ICT sector. Apart from creating role models of Black ICT excellence, it also encourages the continued growth of black entrepreneurship. The African ICT Achievers Awards were run as the Black ICT Awards from 1999 until 2001. With the ongoing involvement and eventual partnership between the Department of Communications and ForgeAhead, the awards, which were traditionally Black ICT Achievers recognition, will now include the whole of Africa from a non-racial perspective, without compromising the need to attract more black professionals into the ICT sector within South Africa. The 2004 African ICT Achievers Awards will include a large number of nominations from across the continent. www.forgeahead.co.za
